

Inflexible Dictatorship Guiding Russia

Soviet Offering World's Greatest Object Lesson

Brilliant Analytical Address "What About Russia," By Former Attorney General of British Columbia

In the following address, Mr. J. Wallace DeBeque Farris, K.C., former attorney general of British Columbia during the Brewster and Oliver administrations deals with modern Russia, and before the Vancouver Board of Trade, the address was hailed as the most informative and enlightening yet heard. Keenly analytical, Mr. Farris discusses the ramifications of Communism and dictatorship in a broad sense.—Editor.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 28.—Russia has undoubtedly made great strides since the revolution, said J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., in a comprehensive and brilliantly analytical address on "What About Russia?" at the Vancouver Board of Trade. But the essential fact is that the progress which has been made, and which will be made in the future, is not due to Communism, but to dictatorship.

Dictatorship Essential
Democracy would not have done it, because democracy is not for people like the Russians, any more than dictatorship is for a free people like those of Canada, Britain and the United States.

Dictatorship would not work in the latter countries because every idea is attributed to free people. They would never stand for it.

Russia's problem is entirely different from that of Canada and the other countries named.

Russia was, and is, backward industrially and needs food and consumer goods. Russia is trying to solve this problem. Canada's problem is that production of goods of all kinds has outrun demand and consumption.

Russia's problem thus amounts to building up production of goods to reach a certain standard of living. Canada's problem is to dispose of and distribute a surplus of goods which can be produced in abundance, thanks to her technological advance.

So far as Russian Communism is concerned, it is inconceivable that Canada could ever accept her way of life in any way turn backwards to learn, from this primitive and cruel people.

World's Problem

The problem of the world today is not between Communism and Capitalism, but between Democracy and Dictatorship.

"Russia is the world's great object lesson in Dictatorship. Italy and Germany have learned the lesson from Russia. Russia is capable of standing against this force? There is a ruthless efficiency about these modern fanatical dictatorships that should cause every lover of liberty, freedom and individual rights, to take heed to the future," the speaker declared.

Mr. Farris said, in part:

Reason for Study
There are important reasons at the present time why we should take some interest in Russia and have some understanding of what is happening in that country.

Russia is the largest country in the world. Its geographical extent in the world extends from the Baltic delta—where the arm of the sea meets the Pacific Ocean, a distance of over 5,000 miles—canalically as far as from here to Europe. It extends north to the Arctic sea, a width of 2,500 miles. It extends south to the equator, an area of over eight million square miles. The area of the world is 106,700,000 square miles.

B.C. AGENCIES CO-OPERATE TO AID STRICKEN

Eighteen Died in Storm, Slides—Damage is Tremendous

VANCOUVER, Jan. 28.—Co-ordination of all government agencies was directed today to relief of persons stricken by heavy snow, umbria widespread snowstorm and floods.

Eighteen were known to have died in the storm and damage was mounting into thousands of dollars as telegraph wires, train services were still crippled. Flood conditions in Fraser Valley, where the Fraser, Abbotford, 40 miles north of Vancouver, were improving. It was believed the peak had passed.

SUFFERING GROWING
With reports of suffering and rising of the snow-bound mountain points still piled up, Premier Bennett, at the request of British Columbia ordered all provincial government agencies to co-operate in meeting the situation. The Red Cross was active. Aero-planes carried food and supplies to isolated points where no other means of communication could succeed.

HEAVY DAMAGE
Property damage was tremendous. Besides the heavy toll taken of telegraph wires and poles and railway facilities, heavy damage was done to bridges and buildings.

Red Deer Owning Not One Red Cent

CALGARY, Jan. 28.—After a dozen chief magistrates had got up today and after a long wait, the Red Deer was pulled down from the top of the list of the cities. Mayor W. P. Cole of Red Deer, Alberta's model city, stood and bowed to the cheering.

His city owes not a cent to anyone. The Red Deer has been reduced to 77 cents in the last 10 years, he added.

BRUNO IS TAKEN BY SURPRISE IN COURT

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 28.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann denied today from the witness stand that he had written the telephone number and address of Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh ransom intermediary, on a panel which police removed from a closet in his Bronx home.

He was facing a man determined to show the German carpenter and the Lindbergh baby murder trial comes today as a project which will be a surprise to the public.

The accused man also admitted that he withheld from his wife his "discovery" that a box which he said contained Lindbergh ransom money had been found in a closet in his home.

The prosecutor, Attorney General David T. Wilentz, said today that he would call the German carpenter into the witness stand to testify that he had written the telephone number and address of Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh ransom intermediary, on a panel which police removed from a closet in his Bronx home.

RAILROAD PASSENGERS SAFE IN COAST DANGER

Transferred to Branch Lines or Rerouted by Lake Boats—To Reach Coast Today.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 23.—West-bound rail passengers, marooned for days in British Columbia mountains by slides and heavy snow, will reach here today night, more than a week behind schedule, it plans the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways authorities.

Four stranded Canadian Pacific trains last night and their passengers rerouted by devious ways, south and west for Vancouver. The Canadian National freed their only marooned train from Fort St. John and planned to bring its passengers by rail and boat to the city.

PASSENGERS CARED FOR.
The only isolated train left in the stormbound Fraser Canyon was the eastbound C.N.R. transcontinental out of here January 19. It remained near Yale as plows and snow-gauges worked to clear the line. Its passengers were reported well cared for.

Canadian Pacific officials reported three westbound transcontinental trains here Monday and Tuesday night. The trains were rerouted to Kamloops and consolidated there with Kettle Valley trains. The left Nelson January 19 and which had been held at Spokane's bridge and reached there Tuesday night. It lay up by slides at Bismarck.

TRANSFERS MADE.
The four train travelled via Simoom to Kelowna, where the passengers were transferred by bus to Kamloops. From there they were bused to Penikese to take a Kettle Valley train. At Yale, they were bused to Kamloops. From there they would take the Canadian Pacific train to Vancouver, arriving Thursday evening.

Passengers about this train include a number of curiers from Vancouver who participated in the British Columbia bridge building at Nelson January 18. Among them was Max Braden, prominent bridge engineer in Winnipeg.

TRAINS REROUTED.
Canadian National authorities reported their line open east of Bonanza. Their trains were rerouted here last Monday morning. They moved overnight from Hells Gate, where they had been stranded, where they picked up passengers from Bonanza. The train was rerouted to Prince Rupert via Redpass Junction.

Wire Communication Made To Vancouver
Canadian Pacific Railway Telegraph has now secured direct communication with Vancouver via Spokane and Seattle, according to the local officials. The main circuit to the coast city went out last week during the terrific snow storm. On the Vancouver side, all wire communication was cut off. On the Seattle side, communication was established with Vancouver. The Seattle and Vancouver service will be continued until such time as the main line is re-opened, which is expected to be near the future.

In the interests of the Department of Agriculture, F. R. Armstrong, director of the department, today during his visit to the Macdonald hotel, in the city.

STATE TAKES UP FIGURES IN BRUNO'S BOOK

Wilents Starts Trail of Cross-Examination in Court

FLEMINGTON, N.J., Jan. 23.—With mixed confidence and defiance, Bruce Richard Hauptmann confronted Attorney-General David T. Wilents today and vowed to take his case to the state supreme court in his pending cross-examination.

Attorney-General Wilents was at the prosecution table early. Hauptmann, who was first seized by his guards, was guided to his cell 20 minutes before court was called to order. Pale but seemingly unconcerned about the threat of execution, he gave up some of his property, including a watch and a pair of shoes, to the guards.

Members of the defense staff, C. Lloyd Fisher and William E. Frank, federal investigators who charged Hauptmann's accounts were true, were in the courtroom.

STARTS HIS CASE.
Wilents started cross-examination of Hauptmann. He asked if he had been in the city of New York on January 17, 1935, the day the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

Mr. Hauptmann, who had been in the city of New York on January 17, 1935, the day the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped, was asked if he had been in the city of New York on January 17, 1935, the day the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

Martial Law Develops Tense Atmosphere in City

KATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 23.—J. B. Bourgeois, president of the Square Deal Association, opposing the dictatorship of U. S. Senator Huey Long, has disappeared. His whereabouts are being sought by the police.

Groups of men hunted through the woods and brush near the airport, where yesterday, according to reports, a fight broke out between the anti-Long forces and the Long supporters.

TENSELY FEARFUL.
Residents of East Baton Rouge parish were tensely fearful of violence and watched armed patrols move through the streets.

With martial law prevailing and the National Guard troops being rushed from other parts of the state, the atmosphere was one of tension.

WOUNDED.
A man named George N. Allard, of Independence, La., a member of the police force, was wounded in the riot.

He was reported by hospital authorities to be in a serious condition. He was being treated at the hospital.

I Saw Today
Captain, Chief Engineer and Cook of Hudson's Bay Ship Margot Glad to Get Back to Civilization.

"We were glad to get out" were the first words spoken by Captain C. H. Roberts, chief engineer W. Weidemann and Cook L. A. Larocque, of the Hudson's Bay Company freighter, Margot, when they stepped out of the ship's cabin on the ice of the Arctic sea. The ship, which was frozen in the ice of the Arctic sea, had been stuck in the ice of the Arctic sea for seven months, just south of the Arctic circle.

SEVEN MONTHS NO BATH
The first thing I'm going to do is have a bath," grumbled Engineer Weidemann. "I haven't had one for seven months, just swill-downs with sea water."

THREE LEFT BEHIND
Three of the crew of the Margot, who were left behind on the ice, were the ship's cook, L. A. Larocque, and two other men. The ship, which was frozen in the ice of the Arctic sea, had been stuck in the ice of the Arctic sea for seven months, just south of the Arctic circle.

TEDE ALLARD HERO As Canadians Win Over South Side

Art Gagne's Eskimos jumped up into fourth place in the standings Saturday night by repeating their earlier victory over Seattle's Seahawks. They didn't win by a six-goal margin this time but they did hammer out a 3-1 triumph over the league leaders, which is satisfactory enough against any kind of opposition. ... There's nothing soft about this Seattle outfit, in fact, they're top-notch minor-leaguers and two victories over them in a week speaks mightily for the playing of the Igloos.

Cleaver Canadian Pivot Gets Both Goals For the Winners—South Siders Are Luckless.

By JACK DEAN
A red-hot pivot was a hockey hero in every one of Safe-Canadians' following at the Arena yesterday afternoon.

The bacon-thick was Ted Allard, eddy-plot-making pivot, and his double-swing that belted South Side Athletics into a shut-out defeat of 3-0.

It was another thrilling Junior Hockey League game in which the Allard star, and watching the brilliant red head was a crowd estimated close to 1,000.

Canadians, by virtue of their line, took their share of victory in seven and remain undefeated in the 10 starts to date.

The biggest crowd of the year watched the game and they were looking at the best game of hockey played at the Arena this year—and maybe for a few years.

It was a highlight of the season, a game that jumped to the attention of the crowd that was in attendance.

Incidentally, while it was the second game of the year it was the first game of the season for the Allard star.

Louis Holmes, who came back from Oklahoma City to play with the Eskos, was the big star Saturday night.

It was the sixth triumph of the year for the Eskos—the sixth in their last nine starts, for they had won their first game of the season.

Yesterday, South Siders failed to clinch a berth in the Junior Hockey League playoffs.

It was the first game of the season for the Allard star.

Bossing Bulldogs

One of the most aggressive players organized hockey has ever seen is now in the driver's seat for Windsor Bulldogs of the International Hockey League.

Harvey "Rocky" Rockburn, burly, hard-hitting defenseman, who never steps back from a fight and can hand out the bumps plenty hard as well as take them, was appointed coach to succeed Dr. Stan Brown when the Bulldogs ran into a long slump.

Rockburn has been a stellar rearguard with the team this season and will continue to play.

Home Is Hero As Local Sextet Whips Seahawks

By BILL LEWIS
Led by the sparkling brilliance of Louis Holmes, the Eskimos battled to a 3-1 victory over Frank Fontana's Seattle Seahawks at the Arena Saturday night in the finest Northwest Hockey League game played here this year.

Holmes, reaching the heights as he had on no previous occasion since returning to the Ekas from Oklahoma City, paved the way to victory with two dazzling goals and, in every way, stood out prominently with his work on the attack and defence.

In every way he was outstanding and the fans shouted themselves hoarse every time he appeared on the ice or skated off to the players' bench.

The triumph sent Eskimos two points ahead of Calgary in the league race and left them just three points behind the third-place Portland Buckaroos.

At last the Ekas got the jump near the close of the season. And it was Holmes who dealt the twin.

Down the ice on a rush with Art Townsend and took the latter's pass as they reached the defence.

He swerved in fast, pivoted and then belted a shot into the goal beyond the net.

Seattle kept up a heavy pressure throughout this period but were unable to get on terms with the determined Ekas.

Half-way through the final period, Holmes clinched the victory when Morey Rimstad and Art Gagne teamed up for their third.

Three Players Will Get Axe After Defeat to Ranger Team

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The axe finally fell Sunday night in the camp of New York Americans, after threatening to do just that for some weeks.

It was not possible to let immediately, however, the news it would strike, but they are to be three in number.

Right after the Americans had bowed to New York Rangers by 4-2, thereby clinching a National Hockey League title that has seen them lie but not win a game since they are "Red" Dorrans of Quebec.

They are "Red" Dorrans of Quebec, "Oss" Heinemann of New Haven and Fred Herget of Philadelphia.

Calgary Club Here Tuesday to Play Eskos

San Timmins' Calgary pros, who have not appeared here for a period of two weeks, return to the city for a scheduled Northwestern Hockey League engagement Tuesday night at the Arena.

Right now, the Eskos are two points ahead of Calgary in the league standings and they can move to within a single point of the third-place Portland Buckaroos with a win tonight.

Calgary, however, have a chance to clinch the league title with the Blubber-Batters with a victory in this game and Timmins can be relied upon to have his charges battling hard for the victory.

Hollett Now Great Hero To Fans In North Sydney

Assured of High Standing Back Home in Cape Breton Town

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—Bill Hollett, defenseman of Toronto's Maple Leafs, has discovered himself to be a somewhat extraordinary hero in the Canadian town of North Sydney, N.S.

He has received a "petition" to assure him of his standing in the Cape Breton town.

Normally one of the fastest-skating young men in professional hockey, Bill has changed, but only temporarily, in a day. He is the side of North Sydney. Nothing like it ever happened to him before. There was a far-away look in his big eyes as he showed his mate in the dressing room.

"Don't, isn't that well?" Hollett said, running his finger down column after column of signatures that started with Mayor F. L. Kelly and included those of the town council, town officials, towns and Royal Canadian Mounted Police, clergy men, doctors and lawyers, business men, newspapermen and just plain citizens.

He is the side of North Sydney. Nothing like it ever happened to him before. There was a far-away look in his big eyes as he showed his mate in the dressing room.

DR. COLLINS SPEAKER AT LOCAL FORUM

Medieval Foundations of Modern Economic Life, Subject

"The broad outlines of modern social and economic life were laid down during the middle ages," said Dr. R. W. Collins, University of Alberta, guest speaker at the Edmonton Forum held in the Masonic Temple Sunday night.

Speaking on "Medieval Foundations of Modern Economic Life," the speaker stated that during the early period of the medieval ages there had been a general decline of civilization and a period of retrogression, in addition to a slowing down in economic and cultural life.

War during this period, stated the speaker had been the normal state of society, while with the absence of authority there had been little trade or industry and agriculture had suffered.

A change from this condition, said Dr. Collins, had become apparent when the middle class came into being. Trade and industry had developed during this period, a development which had been stimulated by the Crusaders.

URBAN LIFE STARTS

The rise of urban life had been an important factor in the development of medieval times, said the speaker. The Tudors had catered to the leaders of the middle class and from this had developed the control of government by the middle Regulation of trade and industry was by no means a modern invention, said Dr. Collins. During this period there had been interference in business by the government while prices had been carefully regulated.

CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS
The rise of industry, said Dr. Collins had brought another class into being and this was the artisan or proletarian class. The role of this class, stated the speaker, had been almost the same as that of the serf in agricultural society. While there had been a steady grade for

The regulation of the woollen industry during the reign of Edward III was described by Dr. Collins, who stated that the export duties on wool and cloth at this time had possibly revealed the roots of economic nationalism.
